

SEVEN SPRINGS WOOL BLANKET, FROM $149; WOOLRICH.COM

COOPER DENIM STOOL, $598; SERENAANDLILY.COM

PRISM STEEL CHIMINEA, $698; SHOPTERRAIN.COM

COPPER CUP, $22; SCHOOL HOUSE.COM

BLACK LINES KILIM CUSHION, $100; LAWSON FENNING.COM

COZY FALL RETREAT

GET THE LOOK

The chic backyard lounge at this Mt. Hood vacation rental provides the perfect formula for warming up an outdoor space. Oregon Coast native Matthew Dakotah teamed up with mom Cheryl Shankel, sister Dani Weese, and childhood friend Lana Scott to transform a hum cabin into the three-bedroom Fir Tree Airbnb (airbnb.com/rooms/16480580; from $195)—a contemporary nature-lovers' lodge layered with Pendleton fabrics, reclaimed woods, faux-fur textures, and leather accents. Noting that their guests were drawn to alfresco chats by the fire even in cooler temperatures, Dakotah and crew hatched a plan to extend the party outside. "I was first inspired by traditional Alpine huts and then set out to reimagine that classic mountain vernacular in a modern way," says Dakotah. So they tapped local builder Ismael Mejia to create an all-season structure featuring a Douglas fir timber frame and a 12-foot charcoal metal roof with metallic gold tongue-and-groove cedar. Ready to channel this open-air look? We've rounded up the goods. —Chantal Lamers

THE MOOSE ROOM

TOP LEFT AND BOTTOM RIGHT: THOMAS J. STORY (PROF. STYLIST: MATTHEW DAKOTAH)